DECLARES N. R. A. COST HAS BEEN HUGE SUM

Representative Ditter Plans To Lead Attack in The House

BOOSTS NAVAL COST

By International News Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 25—Declaring the N. R. A. has cost the government huge sums by destroying competition in bidding, Representative Ditter, of Pennsylvania, planned to lead an attack on the N. R. A. in the House today, and propose legislation which would abolish the N. R. A. code regulation on government bidding.

Disclosure that government contracts now are let on lottery as a result of the N. R. A. price fixing, was made in the fight on the naval appropriations bill. Estimates that the N. R. A. has boosted the cost of the huge naval program more than 20 per cent. are to be submitted.

"The codes destroy competition and the destruction of competition naturally results in a monopoly," said Ditter. "Enough records disclose that even though the lottery method was used on bidding, the United States Steel and the Bethlehem Steel Corporations received a lion's share of equipment contracts. I do not charge corruption, but assume that this is the result of the lottery method."

Three Song Hits Add Zest To "Gold Diggers"

Illustrating in pictures, lyrics and melody the story of a sophisticated Broadway dawn, when the show-gal and play-boy start for their homes to get some much needed sleep just as workaday Manhattan is awakening to the rattle of milk bottles and the roar of morning trains—such is the "Lullaby of Broadway."

This "Lullaby," whose smart modern lyrics by Al Dubin are set to the swinging big-city melody of Harry Warren, is expected by the song team to be their hot-song of the First National musical comedy spectacle "Gold Diggers of 1935," which comes to the Grand Theatre tonight and Friday.

"There are two other important songs in the show—'The Words Are In My Heart,' a love-ballad in waltz time, and 'I'm Going Shopping With You.'"

With Dick Powell on the scene with her, and with a characteristic Busby Berkeley chorus of dancing beauties to set off the colorful number, Winifred Shaw sings the song.

ARE WED

LANGHORNE, Apr. 25—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Carter, Bridge-town, was the scene of an Easter wedding, Saturday, when at three p. m. White, Germantown, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

MAP PROGRAM TO RESTORE NATURAL BEAUTY OF URBAN COMMUNITIES OF PITTSBURGH AREA BY BRINGING BACK TREES, SHRUBS, HARMED BY SMOKE

Gather Data On Species Able To Resist Air Pollution

CONDUCT STUDIES

Will Try Out Jersey Pine For Observation of Smoke Effects

By Arthur H. Wakelee
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 25—(INS)—Based on experimental research, a program is being mapped out here to restore the natural beauty of urban communities by bringing back trees, decorative plants and shrubs that have been driven out by smoke and other pollution in the air of the typical city.

The information being gathered in the attempt to effect the return of verdant decoration includes not only data on species that are able to resist air pollution, but also the latest knowledge on the treatment and scrubbing of the foliage in general. The studies are being conducted at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

Now entering its third year, the Institute's experiments in the field of counteracting damage done to plants by smoke are in charge of L. B. Sisson, industrial fellow. The method he has developed includes periodic spraying of the plants with a solution of pure soap, water and a natural detergent, such as calgon.

"An attempt is now being made to work up a body of information, based on experiments, that will bring trees, shrubs and decorative plants back into smoky cities," Sisson said. "Last year the Missouri Botanical Garden at St. Louis recommended four trees that appear able to resist polluted atmosphere. They include the chinaberry, Japanese Yew, ginkgo and oriental plane."

The last named, also known as the sycamore, was used in reconstructing a mid-town New York park last year, when several of the trees, obtained at an approximate cost of $100 each, were planted there.

This summer, C. W. Beatty, extension forester at Oglebay Institute, W. Va., will try out Jersey scrub pine for observation of smoke effects in that city. Dr. O. E. Jennings, head of the botany department at the University of Pittsburgh, has already made observations on the thriving growth of the hawthorne and elderberry varieties in the smoky Cleveland area.

Sisson's method for combatting the effects of smoke on plants has been used on several types of outdoor and indoor exergreens, including such plants as Blue spruce, taxus, juniper and rhododendron. Already initial spring scrubbing of broad leaf evergreens and other plants that have carried their foliage through the winter and are coated with smoke grime, has been started.

"Special importance attaches to early scrubbing of 'black overcoats' of tarry, acidic soot off the leaves of evergreens," Sisson pointed out. "The short-wave ultra-violet radiation cannot penetrate a film of smoke deposit adhering to the leaf and the plant is therefore partly or wholly unable to feed. Plants can be scrubbed by hand or with a power spray and given an early start toward new growth and flowering."

DEFENSE COUNSEL MOVES FOR VOLUNTARY NON-SUIT

Motion is Made in Case in Which Bristol Woman Asked Damages

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 25—Defense counsel yesterday moved for a voluntary non-suit in the case of Helen K. Gilkeson, of Bristol, against the Lehigh Valley Transit Company, on trial in civil court.

Howard I. James, Bristol attorney, representing the defendant company, presented his argument to President Judge Hiram H. Keller in the absence of the jury.

Mrs. Gilkeson, represented by John P. Betz, Jr., of Bristol, sued for damages as a result of an accident on June 27, 1933, when her husband was fatally injured while driving a stone truck on Deep Run road between Bethlehem pike and Perkaskie road, Bethlehem pike in the Grand View Hospital, at Sellersville.

A verdict for the defendant was returned in the case of Joseph B. Supiot, of New Hope, against Walter F. Melson, Sr. The case was tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Trial started in the cases of Marion Brown, of Quakertown, against Edith Snyder and Webster F. Mease, an additional defendant, and Webster F. Mease, of Quakertown, against Edith Snyder. The plaintiffs are asking damages as a result of an automobile accident on the Doylestown and Quakertown highway. The case is being tried before Judge Boyer.

MANY STUDENTS SHOW INTEREST IN H. S. PAPER

Submit Contributions to The Rambler Box for School Publication

HISTORY OF THE PAPER

A spot at Bristol high school that at sometime during the course of a school term attracts practically every student of the senior and junior high is "The Rambler" box.

In this box which has various powers of attraction are placed contributions for the high school paper, "The Rambler." Some are used, some discarded, but each slip of paper placed therein means that the student has answered the urge to write upon some subject, or probably has given vent to pent-up feelings through poetic efforts.

"The Rambler" is the successor to "The Bolt" and "The Advisor," and is a printed publication of four pages, issued 12 times in the course of a school term.

The arrangement of "The Rambler" has frequently elicited pleasing comments. The four pages are given over to news, literary material, humor and exchange, with parts of two columns reserved for two editorials weekly.

And "club" reporters are getting their training at Bristol high school, for there are about one dozen such who are given special assignments from time to time by the editor, and on this group devolves much of the real work of the publication of "The Rambler."

Quite a large group is directly interested in the publishing of the school paper. Two members of the faculty are of great aid, namely Thomas A. Coles, editorial advisor, and Charles Boyd, financial advisor. Among the students who have had various posts assigned are: Editor-in-chief, Margaret Collier; sports editor, Johnson Orr; news editor, Marjorie Snook; literary editor, Arline Woolman; circulation staff, headed by Mildred Smoyer; advertising manager, Loretta Smith, and the post of subscription manager is vacant at the present time.

The students of both senior and junior high use the contribution box in one of the corridors of Bristol high, and the material thus collected is edited for use or discarded, according to the needs. The editing staff is composed of members from the senior, junior and sophomore classes.

The commercial department is instrumental in typing the material before it is sent to the printer to be placed in type. "The Rambler" staff then arranges the "dummy" from proofs, the students thus securing experience not only in writing the items, but in arrangement as well. The English teachers aid considerably in selecting the students adapted to writing, and suggest these for placement on the staff from time to time.

When the copies of "The Rambler" are received at the school the circulation staff takes them in charge. This group, headed by Mildred Smoyer, has representatives in the various home rooms, and through the home rooms deliveries are made on the day of publication. Some firms from Bristol and nearby points advertise in the school paper. The circulation is now approximately 125.

When publication time arrives next school term the present members of the staff who will still be students at Bristol high, will advance, with the principal of the school selecting the editor and associate editor.

Filibuster in Senate

Washington, D. C., Apr. 25—A fierce sectional filibuster against the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill paralyzed the Senate today. Southern Democrats fought consideration of the measure.

The filibuster held the spotlight, but behind the scenes, Senators Long, of Louisiana, and Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, were ready to match verbal swords on the efficacy of President Roosevelt's relief policy. There were indications Long might withhold his newly-planned attack on the administration until after he has filled a speaking engagement before the Farmers' Holiday Association in Des Moines, Iowa, on Saturday. Robinson, the Democrat leader, was reported ready to answer Huey at any time.

Stabbed by Mother

Camden, N. J., Apr. 25—Mary McClyment, 26, convicted of manslaughter in 1930 in the killing of Edward Nicholson, Jr., today lay near death in a hospital here from a knife wound in the abdomen. Surgeons early today performed an emergency operation in an effort to save her life. Besides Mrs. McClyment, who is held without bail, police took into custody Clyde Mitchell, 26, of Pottsville, and his wife, Etta, 22, who are reported to have witnessed the stabbing. Previous to the death of Nicholson, who was shot in a drunken brawl in the house of John VanDexter, at Blenheim, N. J., Miss McClyment had served a jail sentence in Dauphin county, Pa., for burglary.

DR. FLOOD ENGAGES TRENTON MAN FOR JOB IN BUCKS COUNTY

Gives the Position to Tenant In His Trenton Property

WASHINGTON CROSSING

Many in Bucks County Would Like to Have the Position

Although 14,000 residents of Bucks County have registered with the National Re-employment Service as being "out of work," it evidently makes little difference to Bucks County's Democratic county chairman, Dr. John A. Flood, a Trenton, N. J., dentist.

In spite of the fact that official figures show that at the present time there are approximately 7000 unemployed registered Bucks County residents out of work, in addition to hundreds who have not registered, Dr. Flood, who recently had himself appointed superintendent of Washington Crossing Park, has gone into the city of Trenton to employ a workman at the park.

Through his official position as "Dispenser of patronage" to what he terms, "worthy Democrats," Dr. Flood recently fired a number of employees at Washington Crossing Park in Bucks County, and replaced them with "hand-picked" favorites.

Among the chosen few was a tenant of Dr. Flood who lives in the latter's three-story apartment house at 213 Academy street, Trenton. He is James Nay, who lives with his family in part of Dr. Flood's house in Trenton. The wife of Dr. Flood's tenant in the Trenton house conducts a beauty parlor on the first floor of the house at 213 Academy street. On the second floor, the Bucks County Democratic chairman practices dentistry, while the third floor is devoted to living quarters for the Nay family. Dr. Flood's residence is in New Hope, Bucks County.

Nay travels back and forth from Trenton to his Bucks County job daily. Some days he drives a car and other days he is brought to Washington Crossing by a friend.

A survey completed yesterday shows that thousands of Bucks County residents, a great many of them native born, are badly in need of employment. There are many farmers on this list in the possession of the official records, and any one of them could easily do the work assigned to the Trenton resident, Nay. In spite of this fact, Democratic Chairman Flood picks one of his Trenton tenants to work in Bucks County on a State job.

There are scores of World War veterans in Bucks County who are still out of work, and any one of them could have filled the job which Dr. Flood chose to fill with his Trenton tenant.

Figures recently released for publication show that $75,222 was spent in Bucks County on relief over a five-week period, but Bucks County residents who are willing to work have been replaced, at least in one instance, by a Trenton tenant of the Bucks County Democratic chairman.

Last week Nay was engaged in assisting workmen at Washington Crossing Park to remove the old covered wooden bridge at Neely's Mill.

What is Dr. Flood's explanation for employing at Washington Crossing Park, a resident of the state of New Jersey and a tenant in his house, is awaited with keen interest.

THE QUEST FOR MARKETS

In former depressions those pinched by hard times always had the opportunity of mounting the horse or hitching up the oxen and moving westward to take up a land claim or dig for gold. That relieved the unemployment situation in the settled East and created new markets farther west.

That meant that production, agricultural especially, increased by leaps and bounds as the frontier moved toward the setting sun and hundreds of thousands of acres were added to those under cultivation. For decades, generations, America was predominantly agricultural, feeding far-flung markets.

Production of foodstuffs was able to expand so rapidly because American cities were growing rapidly both in number and in population and America was the granary of the world. England converted our raw materials into manufactures which she traded back to us for food for her people.

The result was rapid geographical expansion and general prosperity, with brief interruptions, for the United States. No matter how much the Yankee farmer produced there were always markets waiting for his products.

New lands to settle and develop are out of the picture, not because they do not exist but because there are already too many acres under cultivation. One-half the old safety valve is beyond use—the other half must be patched up.

LESS CONTENTIOUS

For some time it has been evident that hostilities between the old and the young are in abeyance. The two generations are equally weary of the fray, more than a little ashamed of their reciprocal atrocities, not unresponsive to the idea of a negotiated peace. It is the terms of peace that remain to be drafted.

A kinder, kinder world is in the making. Mankind with the passing of the years is lifting itself out of cruelty, intolerance, misgovernment and corruption. Progress is away from venality in business and politics and toward the softening of manners and a recognition of human worth.

But a century back there were two hundred offenses punishable with death in England, and as late as the last century there was an amazing degree of cruelty, or oppression, of immorality and of corruption which would not be tolerated today.

Therefore the new understanding and sympathy between the old generation and the new. A new spirit of give and take prevails. Tomorrow may find all generations working for the good of all, both in government and in business.

And, after all, the young are no more to be condemned than the old. If this generation lacks the grace and gentility of older times, neither has it the public hangings and torture chambers of the wig and lace period.

There's no place like home, to get away from occasionally.

An $18,000,000 estate is now up for distribution, in Philadelphia. But Mdivanis can't be everywhere.

The big vocabulary covers more ground, but the little ones handle more dirt.

The jack is used to lift things, which explains why a higher calling is higher.

Picnics Will Soon Be The Order Of The Day

Before we know it, we shall be packing the picnic basket and getting the camping equipment together in preparation for days to be spent in the open. Many of us, I know, shall travel over many miles of concrete highway to our favorite spot, and a spot where the children may while away hours, paddling their feet in the cooling waters of a babbling brook. Others shall seek deeper waters from which we may occasionally capture a fish, the variety and size of which go toward the making of those wonderful fish stories we hear so often.

In any event, we shall want to make sure that our kit contains all that is necessary to insure a delightful holiday, and so, we'll include a hatchet, that the wood may be chopped for the making of a fire, a jack-knife and plenty of matches. We'll also want a large saucepan, a coffee pot, a paring knife and a long-handled fork. I'm just enumerating a few of the things we're likely to forget, so jot them down in your memory, that they may be included when it comes time to be off for a bit of diversion in the open. Today we shall include in our column menu suggestions for the week-end, including a pertinent recipe or two.

Fresh Fruit Ice Cream or Rhubarb Tarts Coffee

Cheese Gingerbread

- 1 cupful molasses
- $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoonful baking soda
- 1 cupful water
- 2 cupfuls flour
- 2 teaspoonfuls ground ginger
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful salt

Combine molasses and cheese in upper part of double boiler and beat until cheese is melted. Add soda and beat vigorously. Sift the flour, salt and ginger together. Pour the molasses and cheese mixture into these with the water, and mix very quickly. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in small greased pans in a moderately hot oven.

County Seat Odd Fellows Victims of A Forger

Aquetong Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., of Doylestown, discovered this month that an attempt has been made recently to defraud it of a considerable sum of money through the passing of forged "relief" checks.

The discovery was made recently when the lodge received nineteen checks aggregating $234 purported to have been made out to C. E. Wilson, for amounts ranging from $12 to $15.

There is no member of that name belonging to the lodge and no checks of that sort were issued in the regular course of the lodge's business.

The checks are all endorsed by "C. E. Wilson, 626 East 4th street, Doylestown." They bore the lodge seal.

They were cashed by stores in central and western Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee and District of Columbia.

The checks were taken from the back of a new check book the lodge received some time ago, which had not been used, so that the loss was not noticed earlier.

The checks were all cashed between April 5th and 11th.

Chief of Police James P. Welsh and the State Police are making an investigation.

Daily Paper Favorite

New York City, Apr. 25.—The daily newspaper is by far the favorite medium of the national advertiser when he spends his dollar to reach new markets and to retain the old ones. This was shown clearly today in the 22nd annual report of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which was submitted to nearly 700 publishers here for the 4th annual convention of the American Newspaper Association.

In 1934, the report showed 43.7 per cent of the national advertisers' dollar was spent in newspapers, the balance was scattered in four other channels. Last year national advertisers paid $163,000,000 for space in newspapers as compared with $145,000,000 in 1933.

The national advertisers' total budget for 1934 was $349,055,000, which was $51,055,000 more than the year before, according to the report.

D. C. FARMS VANISH

WASHINGTON--(INS)--The nation's capital will soon be composed entirely of city slickers. Latest reports of the census bureau shows there are only 96 genuine farms in the District of Columbia. This is fewer than were found in the last census. The decline has been steady in the last few years, the bureau says, and it won't be long until residents of the capital will be beating their plows into lawn mowers.

DEFLATION

RAVENNA, O.--(INS)--Mrs. R. D. Warner thought her chickens had heard of the NRA and cut down on laying eggs. That's when she went into her chicken coop and found only 11 eggs after the daily output had averaged 35 eggs. She hunted up her husband and told him something must be wrong. It was. No less than 35 buff rocks of the Warner flock had been stolen.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

FRUITS come to the fore this week with bananas ahead in price and quality. Fresh pineapples are plentiful and cheap, strawberries much lower than last week and rhubarb, though not really a fruit, is now half its recent price, outdoor grown rhubarb supplanting the hothouse variety. Oranges, grapefruit, lemons and apples are all low in price.

Tomatoes though a fruit, are classed as a vegetable and they are now within reach of most food budgets—and so is asparagus. Among the greens mentioned last week is broccoli rabe, a green with tight buds and an occasional yellow flower. Cooked like spinach, it combines the flavors of dandelion and broccoli. It is cheap, as are the other greens—including dandelions, collards and mustard.

Butter and eggs are both somewhat higher, and meat prices are no lower and no lower prices are expected in the immediate future.

Here are three menus made up of seasonable foods adapted to different budget levels:

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Breast of Lamb
Mashed Potatoes Dandelion Greens
Bread and Butter
Rice Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Lamb Browned Potatoes
Asparagus with Lemon Butter
Bread and Butter
Spanish Cream with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

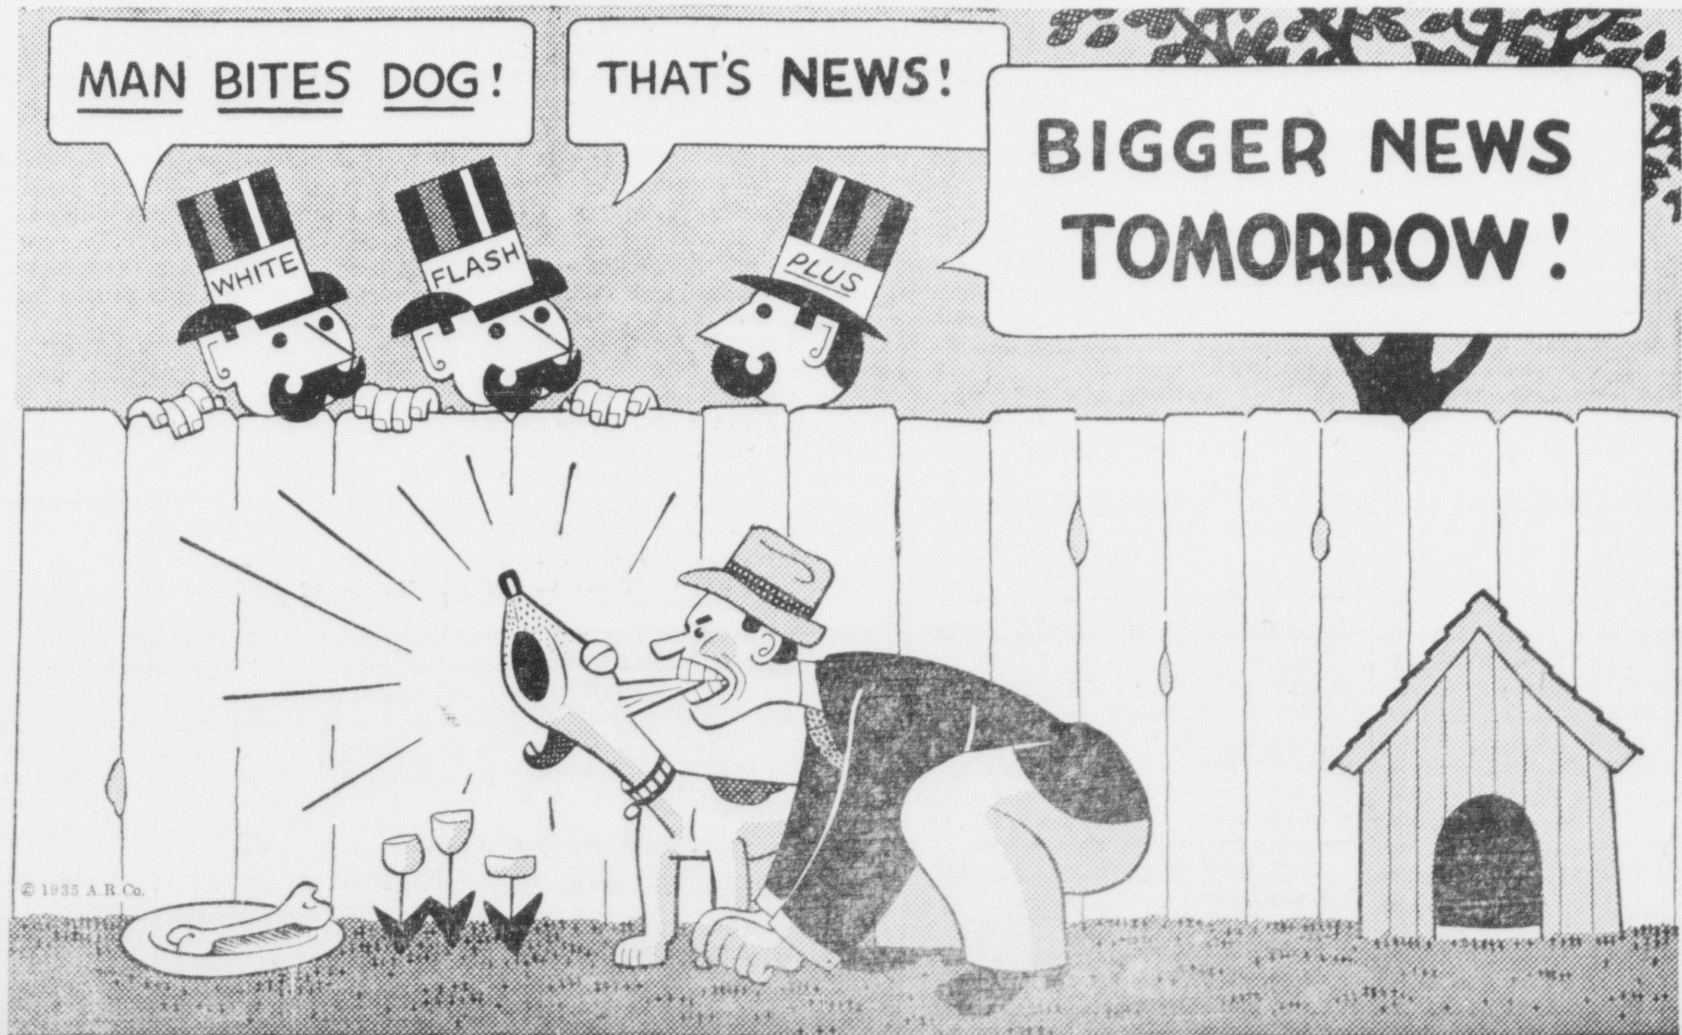

Very Special Dinner

Strawberry and Pineapple Cup
Chicken a la Maryland New Potatoes
Asparagus on Toast
Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter
Chocolate Bavarian Cream

NOW—right in your own home—you and your family can enjoy the benefits of this same type of natural regulative diet prescribed by noted sanitarians for the relief of constipation! Countless people spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year for similar treatment at expensive health resorts.

Self-medication with cathartic drugs can never be depended upon to cure constipation! The only real and lasting relief lies in the regular eating of food containing natural laxative food elements. PRUN-O-WHEAT BREAD—which you can get at your grocer's—is just such a natural laxative food. It has a fine combination fruit and nut-like flavor that everyone likes.

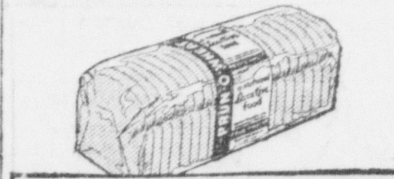

PRUN-O-WHEAT BREAD is made with flaked wheat and the concentrated juice of sun-ripened prunes. These natural foods don't stimulate laxative action by irritation the way cathartic drugs do. Instead, they are naturally laxative, non-habit forming because of organic acids, sugars and Vitamin B. PRUN-O-WHEAT BREAD contains no drugs or medicine. . . . no unexplained ingredients. All ingredients are listed below.

Have your family try this delicious new health food. A few slices of PRUN-O-WHEAT at each meal over a two-week period will relieve all but the most obstinate cases of constipation—yet its gentle action provides only a healthy regulative

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly
(Famous Hollywood Stylist Now Writing For I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Apr. 18—(INS)—Everybody knows Spring flowers are in—it's April! But they're not only in, they're ON—on dresses, on top of hats, and everywhere else. Midway wishes to use a bouquet. Some are real, some are artificial, and some of the most beautiful, truly, are only printed—but what prints!—imported ones, on silk.

My mind is full, right now, of costumes that Marion Davies will wear in her new picture, "Page Miss Glory." In them, the flower theme is well illustrated. Even in street things—let's take, for instance, her coat-and-dress ensemble. The dress is a flower-printed silk, in gay colors, red, blue, yellow, on a light background. The coat is blue, with full peasant sleeves gathered in at the wrist, and the print of the dress showing through in a slashed front, while the full dress color and fuchsia-jabot come outside to do double duty when the coat is on.

And for evening—visualize a crisp white organdie foundation, keeping the slender silhouette; and over that a flowing skirt of sheer mousseline; with a mass of daisies clustered over the shoulders to the base of a lovely throat. Or an underslip of silk sprinkled with enormous, bright, printed flowers, visible through a stiffened marquisette overskirt, the motif repeated in a nosegay of field flowers and wheat ears in a "cat's whisker" bow at the throat. On a hot summer's night nothing could be more alluring! And hats! Hats have gone mad! They are gay with flowers—masses of them, in crude, gay peasant colors, tying in with the print of a taffeta blouse or of a whole dress. Little hats like flower pots will sit on top of feminine heads—others will have whole flower gardens, and still others may have a single, large bright flower poised ridiculously front and a trifle off-side. But it's impossible to predict what insane, delightful things hats will do this year. Hats have gone mad! Some more styles that will be "in" by summer are "floating" skirts, and fans!

You're hearing a lot about full, swinging, swaying, gored, gathered skirts, right now. But the woman who has retained a slender, youthful figure will want to show it. So the solution to the problem of reconciling the two is what I call the "floating" skirt—the tight silhouette retained in the foundation, and the floating fullness obtained in sheer, crisp, transparent overskirts that can be as long and as gathered as the wearer likes—because when she walks the slender under-seath will show through.

As to fans—they too will be made of flowers, of organdie, of feathers; they'll have jeweled handles; some will be gold, some silver, and some that look like spun glass.

Grecian, Regency, Peasant—flowers, fans and furbelows: no matter what the style you'll be in keeping with the trend if you remember but one thing. The tailored era has flown—this is the age of femininity!

LOST THEIR FIRE HOSE

HALLOWELL, Me.--(INS)—Imagine their embarrassment. The fire laddies of the local department pulled up in front of a building, the roof of which was blazing merrily, and found that the hose section of their combination hook and ladder hose truck had not come to the fire. It had bounced off the truck and none of the men had noticed the loss. Other equipment was used to extinguish the blaze.
